Institute for Interdisciplinary Gender Research and Diversity

The IGD is a busy site of research, knowledge transfer, lively discussion and international exchange. We are collaborating with an international community of academics who share an interest in understanding the impact of gender on their respective societies within their field of academic study and beyond.

"Political is Personal: Women's Voices in Israel-Palestine"

Lecture with Sarah Arnd Linder, 3 May 2018, 12:00 - 14:00 Uhr

Christian-Albrechts-Platz 2, 24118 Kiel, Hörsaal A

Meet Sarah Arnd Linder a francophone Danish Jew and founder of the initiative Political is Personal PIP, an initiative which conducts in-depth interviews with Israeli Jewish and Palestinian women in which they safely and freely share how their lives have been affected by the realities of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. As with many other societal problems around the world, the conflict and its solution lack the voices of women. Their stories tell how the conflict is perceived and experienced by women from different backgrounds and reveal some of the hidden sides of the conflict. In the lecture Sarah will share the voices of Israeli and Palestinian women, the themes that came up in the interviews and why Political is Personal is needed. She will take questions and comments during the presentation to encourage a fruitful dialogue.

Save the date: Symposium "Future Indonesia", 14. September 2018

Indonesia is the world's 4th most populous country and largest economy in Southeast Asia. In the last decade a conservative strain of Islam has gained sway, with conservative Muslim leaders and groups targeting, for instance, LGBT minorities. If restrictive tendencies gain ground what is the future of Indonesia? The symposium will be held in Berlin.
